To whom it may concern,

Joseph A. DiBruno Jr. is under my care. He is currently dealing with physical and emotional problems resulting from a variety of legal issues that have arisen in his business. We have him under the care of a family doctor for medical problems and under the care of both a psychiatrist and a psychological counselor for his mental and emotional problems. He has additionally received numerous speciality consultations over the last year as well as laboratory and radiological testing.

Although his condition is improving, at this time I do not feel that he possesses sufficient mental and emotional competence to properly assist his counsel in any necessary proceedings in his defense.

Sincerely,

To Whom It May Concern:

RE: Joseph DiBruno

Dear Sir or Madam:

Please be informed that Mr. DiBruno has been under my care for the past year for problems of anxiety including Panic Disorder. This condition would likely intensify and worsen if Mr. DiBruno were to be exposed to situations of high stress such as court proceedings. Please take this into consideration in regards to any upcoming court appearances.

Sincerely,

Brian Simpson, PhD
